

Explore The Authentic Backcountry At Adirondack's Orenda Retreat

Glamping is the escape you need from the city

Posted by Sarah McLellan in Attractions, Go, Places, Sightseeing on April 10, 2014. 0 Comments | Adirondacks

Glamping is a trend on the rise and for those who want to escape the city while still maintaining some levels of comfort, then Camp Orenda in the Adirondack's has what you're after. This authentic backcountry retreat sits in the heart of the Upstate New York Adirondack mountains, and starts welcoming city-escapees from Friday May 9th, 2014.

It's an all-inclusive camping experience that you can get to in less than 4 hours from NYC and features your choice of six custom cabins where you can kick back and get a little nature into your life. While you're there, you can enjoy a variety of outdoor activities including archery and guided nature walks. There are also mountain brooks, streams and lakes if you want to dip your toes in.

Updates to the third season of this glamping spot (If you aren't familiar with this word, click here) include a full service kitchen, and a 6th cabin that can sleep 3 guests — plus the luxe amenities like heated outdoor shower, communal fire pit, bath house and dining pavilion will be there to make your stay more than comfortable.

Prices start at $190 per night/per couple and you can get more info on Orenda and the surround area, here.